The Peace Party.

It is well known that some of the mos zealous Republicans at the commencement o these troubles belonged to the ultra peace party. Let the South go, was the word. Let no sword be drawn to prevent it. They have changed since, and are now the mortal enemies of all who say peace. We believe these Republicans were the only unconditional peace party we have had. Some others are called peace men; but they have never said they would accept peace and disunion. They, whilst they oppose the war as it is, express the utmost devotion to the Union of these States. They have never said let us have beace at the expense of Union. They say eace because they believe that peace will oring Union sooner than war. They may err in this, but there is room for difference of ppinion in this point. They want commisioners appointed to treat with the South, or to see if peace and Union cannot be obtained. They want a universal amnesty, the repeal of enal laws, and rebels offered the old Constitution with all its guaranties. Then their judgment is, that resistance to the authority of the Government will cease, and peace and

In short, they would seek peace as this and other wise Governments have sought peace before. But suppose that, after all these overtures are made, the seceded States would still resist and refuse all but independencewhat then? They might rep'y that "sufficient into the day is the evil thereof."

If we are to settle what should be done in my future possible contingency, an equally uzzling question might be asked on the other

Suppose the war be carried on until the ower to make war is exhausted and the South s still unsubdued-suppose, when the whole South is overrun, there is still no submission, that no laws can be executed in the South but by standing armies-what then? There is the same question, and likely to come up, upon a possible contingency.

The zealous war man would fall back on the same reply-"sufficient unto the day is the

Now, we take it for granted that this war vill stop some day not very far distant; and with Union the sooner it stops the better. The President has proposed terms of peace but they amount to nothing. The effect will be but partial and insignificant. To enforce such terms would be more difficult than to settle the dispute originally. Besides, the President does not say he will agree to no other terms. Why, then, should we not know

It is sheer impertinence in a out it who would go to Frankfort, unless, perman, who repudiates our laws and Constitution, to claim their protection when he needs it. All this is admitted. But there is another side to the question. When we assert that ture may be in regard to the removal of the they have no rights under cur Constitution, we admit that they owe it no obedience. We has all the advantages of position, of comfort, oncede that they have achieved independence of our Constitution and laws. We thus stultify ourselves on one side, as they would on the other, did they claim any right under our Constitution. Our pretensions require that we treat these rebels as under our Constitution, no matter what they may claim to be.

A Christian may say that his Infidel neighoor has no right to claim to be treated according to the rules of Christianity, for the latter does not agree that he is bound by those rules. But can the Christian, therefore, in dealing with that neighbor, disregard all Christian obligations? Can he admit that his Infidel neighbor is really not under any obligations to the Divine law? More than all that, does his neighbor's secession from all Christian obligations exempt him from all or from any Christian duties?

Late from Southern Papers. MYSTERIOUS AND MELANCHOLY METAMORFHO

[From the Whig of the 18th of January.]

Some years ago—not more than two, or, at the outside, three—the world was startled by the sudden appearance in the New Hemis-phere of a numerous and very warlike people. They were from five to eight millions strong, occupied a vast and exceedingly fertile terri tory, and at the time were engaged in a bloody war against a people three times as numerous, who disputed their right to independence. They asserted that they were of a different type and better race than the people against whom they were warring, and with whom they had once lived in common. They de-clared that they were homogeneous, while their enemies were heterogeneous. They styled themselves the chivalry of the nineteenth century, and stigmatized their foes as peddlers. They were moral and religious; their late partners immoral and fanatical. They were truthful and honest; the Yankee (for so their enemies were called) were liars from the womb and cheats by profession. Strange to say, this new and heroic race, which gave such brilliant promise, has disappeared as suddenly as it appeared; and, by a metamorphosis unparalleled in the by a metamorphosis unparalleled in the pages of fiction, given way to a people every whit as bad, if no worse, than the Yankees. If recent issues of the same dingy newspapers which three years ago breathed so defant a tone, and such consciousness of superiority, may be trusted, the once noble population of the South has become utterly extinct. Patrictism is dead; corruption and fraud stalk in high places; the finances are in ruins; food is nearly exhausted; extortion and speculation rule superiority and speculation rule superiority. hausted; extortion and speculation rule su-preme; not a particle of statesmanship is dis-played; Congress has gone mad; civil liberty is threatened at the hands of the friends of the Chief Magistrate; civil ability has perish-ed; military talent is rapidly waning; and, what is worse than all, the people are be-grading food and clothing to their seem with what is worse than all, the people are be-grudging food and clothing to their sons who are fighting, and have given themselves up, the men to drinking and the greed of gain, and the women to paint and exposure of their persons. Worse yet, everybody is frightened because, forsooth, some hundred of thousands of Yenkess (recylotyre millions of whom of Yankees (nearly two millions of whom have already been whipped) are coming next spring.

Of course these are not the same people who inhabited the South three years ago. A dia-bolical and inexplicable metamorphosis has been wrought. An internal, incomprehensible transmutation has taken place. As for the people who have taken the place of the Southerners, it is impossible to say what they will do; unless another metamorphosis, not less marvelous than the first, be wrought, it is a matter of no moment whatever whether they do or do not do anything at all. If we can get back the old people, all fancied or real difficulties will vanish before their courage and supreme love of freedom. If we can not get them back, then the game is up. A people unfit for liberty will never win it, and it is a waste of time to try to make them fight or legislate for it. egislate for it.

A SCFT PLACE FOR SUBSTITUTED MEN. [From the Whig, January 20.]

If we may trust Dame Rumor, the hotels of this city are filled with gentlemen from the country, who have flocked here for the pur-pose of escaping the iron grasp of the con-script officers and finding easy perths somewhere. It is also stated, on equally good authority, that of the forty members of the House of Representatives whose time expire with the present session, nearly five-fifths have evinced, of late, a deided inclination toward the Administration. That, in so inclining, they are actuated by disinterested patriotism, and not by the desire of finding soft places under the broad wings of the Government, who cay doubt? Else why the unfounded ignituation, that these retiring seemes are the sinuation that these retiring sages are the prime movers of these resolutions which seem designed to invest the Executive with far more power than he desires?

> A NICE QUARREL [From the Whig, January 27.]

Discord has arisen between the co-ordinate epartments of the Confederate Government. This should not be. The Senate complains its constitutional rights have been invaded or disregarded. The complaint of the Senate seems to be founded in justice. By mistaking rank for office, the acting Quartermaster Gen rank for office, the acting Quartermaster General is acting without authority of law, and all his drafts upon the Treasury are illegal.

But then the question arises, is the matter in dispute worth the time it consumes? It is admitted that the constitutional question might be deferred to more quiet times; but it is a the same time alleged that the practical positions by the President's refusal to renominate. This is alleged with much earnestness in respect to one most important officer-the rel and the powder on top.

Commissary General—whose incompetency has almost reduced the army to starvation, and whose nomination, it is said, would be rejected by a unanimous vote of the Senate. This officer is reputed an especial pet of the President; and his being regarded as crazy in Carolina may account for his not being duly oody doubts the patriotism and pugnacity of our President. He is ready for any quar-rel with any and everybody, at any and all times; and the suspicion goes that rather than not have a row on hand with an enemy, he would make one with the best friend he had on earth. But, with deference—there is reason in all things. The Yankees are enemies enough for the time being to gratify the war-like propensities of the most bellicose. Let us have peace among ourselves, that we may deal the more vigorous blows to our common

MAMMOTH SWINDLE-LIVINGSTON THROWN INTO THE SHADE - A MILLION AND A QUARTER

The swindles of this war are carried on on as grand a scale as the war itself—both exceed anything yet accomplished in their respective lines. Captain Decie, an Englishman, residing near the Montgomery White Sulphur Springs, has "recognized" the Confederacy—done it for the handsome figure of $1,200,000—and sloped. has "recognized" the Confederacy—done it for the handsome figure of $1,200,000—and sloped. His operations were sales of bogus bills of sterling exchange. The Lynchburg Virginian gives the following account of this great swindle:

virginian gives the following account of this great swindle:

"The bills were disposed of to various merchants and brokers of Richmond and other towns, and on being forwarded for collection the startling fact was brought to light that they were spurious. They, however, bear the indorsement of the Cashier of the Bauk of the Valley at Christianabure, which indemnifies Valley at Christiansburg, which indemnifies the holders from loss but will ruin the bank. The cashier had such assurances as to make him perfectly confident of his safety in the transactions, but it turns out that they were delusive. Among those who vouched for his responsibility, we hear the names of gentlemen in high station connected with the Government

'Decie, we believe, claims to be an officer 'Decie, we believe, claims to be an officer in the Royal Navy, and, we understand, had some connection with our Government. He has been residing for a year or two in Montgomery, where he owns a plantation and has recently had erected a splendid residence. A great deal of his time, however, was spent in Richmond, where he lived in princely style, paying as much as one hundred and forty dollars a day at the hotels, beside taking his meals at the restaurants. His extravagance seemed to have no bounds.

THE BIGGEST YET. The Yankees have told many lies, but the ollowing exceeds them all:

The North Carolina Times copies and in-dorses a remarkable article from the Rich-mond Whig, which contains the following significant paragraph:

"Slavery has stabbed itself to death. It has sinned against light—committed the unpar-donable sin, and must die."

So far from believing that slavery must die, we have long held the opinion that it is the normal and only humane relation which labor can sustain toward capital. When this war is over, we shall urge that every Yankee who ventures to put foot on Southern seil be made a slave for life, and wear an iron collar as a badge of inferiority to the African. Slavery will stab itself to death about the time the Yankees learn to tell the truth, and no sooner.

Brown claimed that Adams in our power to take up the work of charity wherever the authorities may have been forced to drop it, and to carry it forward until every substituted man shall be comfortably and permanently accommodated. Wetherefore invite most cordially all substituted men to quit the game of the hide-and-seek which they have been playing, to come out of their holes in the hotels, quit teasing the heads of departments for places which have long ago been filled, and repair in a body to this office, purchase a copy of this paper and peruse attentively the following stanza from Byron's "Lines on my Thirty-sixth Birthday:"

named Brown. Brown claimed that Adams owed him $18, which he refused to pay. While the latter was splitting wood in his shed on Saturday afternoon, Brown appeared with a club, raising it (as Adams says) to strike him. Suddenly, in his excitement, Adams dealt him a blow on the head with his ax, knocking him down senseless. Losing als elf-control, he then continued his blows upon the prostrate man, until suddenly the thought that he was a murdered man lying face downward in his blood. When discover-

Great gashes were seen on the fore-head and back of the head, and a hole was broken in back part of the left ear, while the lower part of the skull was literally smashed. The victim, strange to say, continued to breathe, and was not dead until an hour and a half after the blows had been given. Adams gave himself up and is now in confinement. He is represented as being a grasping, closefisted man. The place where the murder was committed, says a Connecticut exchange, is fated ground. Near it Adams' father killed himself by cutting his throat; in the same house, some years ago, a woman hung her-self; later, another woman in the same house died without a moment's warning; on the same premises, a few years since, a negro fell from a load of hay and broke his neck. In addition to this catalogue of horrors, the house has been repeatedly broken into by miduight robbers and murderers. On one occasion two of Adams' hired men, claiming that they were unjustly kept out of their full wages, entered his bedroom at night, threatening to shoot him if their demands were not complied with, and a woman, who, aroused by the noise, feerlessly entered the room, was that through the arm, the bell shattering has been through the arm, the bell shattering has shot through the arm, the ball shattering her wrist. How to Court in Church .- A young gentleman, happening to sit at church in a pew adjoining one in which sat a young lady for whom he conceived a sudden and violent pas-sion, was desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot; but the place not suiting a formal declaration, the exigency of the case suggested the following plat: He politely handed his fair neighbor a bible, opened, with a pin strick in the following text—second epistle of John, verse fifth: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new seech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that we had from the beginning, that we love one another." She returned it, pointing to the second chapter of Ruth, verse tenth—"Then she fell on her face, and bowed herself unto the ground and said unto him: Why have I found grace in thing eyes, seeing that I am as ground and said unto him: why have I found grace in thine eyes, seeing that I am a stranger?" He returned the book, pointing to the thirteenth verse of the third epistle of John: "Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink, but I trust to come unto you, and speak face to face, that our joy befull." From the above introduction it is useless to tell what responsibility the young man took upon himself and sibility the young man took upon himself and the numerous "responsibilities" that followed annually thereafter.—[Exchange.

CATS AT SEA.—Considering now made the cat abhors cold water, our readers must often have wondered why seafaring men are so fond of taking the animal with them on a voyage. CATS AT SEA .- Considering how much the of taking the animal with them on a voyage. This is explained by two circumstanees. Marine insurance does not cover damage done to cargo by the depredations of rats; but if the owner of the damaged goods can prove that the ship was sent to sea unfurnished with a cat, he can recover damages from the ship-master. Again, a ship found at sea with no living creature on board is considered a derelict, and is forfeited to the admiralty, the finders, or the Queen. It has often happened that after a ship has been abandoned some domestic animal—a dog, a canary bird, or most frequently a cat, from its hatred of facing the waves—has saved the vessel from being condemned as a derelict. sel from being condemned as a derelict JESSE D. BRIGHT BEGINS TO SEE IT .- We learn from a gentleman who met Jesse D. Bright at Kent Station, White county, a week or ten days since, that the distinguished exsenator has greatly modified his views on the rebellion. It was refreshing to hear him talk rebellion. It was refreshing to hear him talk of the inexhaustible power and resources of the North in connection with the inevitable overthrow of the conspirators. He yields to the inexorable logic of events on the slavery question and doubts if the peculiar institution can possibly be restored to its former position and security, even in those sections where practical abolition is not already an accomplished fact. He says the South staked the institution upon the fortunes of war, and having lost in the desperate chance, must abide the result.—[Lafayette Courier.

ARREST OF A REBEL SPY .- An officer of the rebel army, whose name we did not learn, was arrested in this city yesterday and sent to the military prison. He was in the city a few days since in full uniform, but left for Cincinnati, and returned yesterday in full citizens dress, on his way, it is presumed, back to the rebel army. He was arrested by the provost guard, and will be tried as a spy-

We understand that the ladies were yesterday soliciting funds to erect a monument to the Union soldiers that have been interred at Cave Hill. The movement is no in this way and a fine overcoat and three doubt a laudable one, and should be entered upon in some public manner to ensure success. Wood's THEATER. Miss Mary Mitchell appe Major Fitch, Provost Marshal, in regard to istrator of Reuben Porter, Joseph Lloyd and last evening to a crowded and fashionable audience, in the beautiful character of Louise, in the celebrated French play of Eustache Baudine. Miss Mitchell's performance of Louise is one of the most brilliant and beautiful histrionic achievemost brilliant and beautiful histrionic achieve-ments ever accomplished in this city. It sent the Hats. audience away with a fresh conviction that the drama can be, as it should be, indeed, a sublime reflection of the thoughs and feelings and passions which animate the mind and heart of every man Appraisement and list of sales of the estate and woman on earth. Miss Mitchell's impersonation of the wronged, but still faithful and loving Louise, moved strong men to weep, and even forced an extraordinary light of refinement and reason into the windows of the coarsest natures To night will be presented the ever-popular "Hid len Hand" and the elegant comedietta of a "Day After the Wedding," Miss Mitchell appearing in both pieces.

LOUISVILLE THEATER .- The Louisville Theater was crowded to its utmost capacity last night, and that we have seldom, if ever, seen equaled. Tonight the piece will be repeated, Miss Anderson appearing as Mazeppa, which, with Claude Duval.

Williamson, guardian of Wm. Newland; Theo. pected to be a most brilliant affair. We advise Bentz, guardian of Mary, Alice, Edward and those desirous of witnessing the performances to secure seats early. Such an array of musical talent is rarely brought together in this country. Th numerous friends of Madame Brownold in this city, where she is known as an artiste in full pos session of those rare musical powers which won universal admiration at the Havanah Opera, and vocal and instrumental contert as profitable to the estimable lady as it will be distinguished for the array of musical talent that will be exhibited. Mr. tor of Maria Weizelberger; C. H. Widekind Louis Ballenberg, the famous flutist from P ke's Opera House, at Cincinnati; Mr. Chas. Kunkel, who, with Gottschalk, won bright laurels as a pianist, will alone constitute a remarkable attract tion, while the Messrs. Zoel er in their marvel ous performances on the piano and violin, will afford a rare treat, to say nothing of the highly popul lar performances of the Orpheus Society and of that eminent vocalist, Professor Whipple.

Heimstreet's Inimitable Hair Restora-

It is not a dye, but restores gray hair to its original color, by supplying the capillary tubes with natural sustenance, impaired by age or disease. All instantaneous dyes are composed of lunar caustic, destroying the vitality and beauty of the hair, and afford of themselves no dressing. Heimstreet's Inimitable Coloring not only restores hair to its natural color by an easy process, but gives the hair a luxuriant beauty, promotes its growth, prevents its falling off, eradicates dandruff, and imparts health and pleasantness to the head. It has stood the bune writes from Johnson's Island that 500 of the prisoners there are ready to take the oath of allegiance. A perfect reign of terror is maintained by the incorrigible traitors in the prison over any they suspect of being desirous is pleasantness to the head.
